EUROPEAN COMEDY

It was quite funny to see the disappointed faces of the political-class the day after European elections in France. Simple joy to feel the sad atmosphere of the ones who were proudly asking for our voices the day before. Whatever you think about elections, they can at least be analyzed. They maybe are a kind of social-photography of a define space and time. Main medias tell that it has been a great victory for the government. Lies ! Jokeadit!!! brings the NewsReal to you.

For example, including the 60% of vote abstention, the 28% score of the PMP (Power & Money Party, today governmental right-party) just means 9% of people who can vote. What a great victory ! French president Sarkozy is very lucky to gather right-extremist suffrages. The other big political party, the TSP (Traitor & Stupid Party, today oppositional left-party), is out also ! It can't manage anymore to convince anyone that this organization is useful... The alternative-left is even more out thanks to their stupid divisions. They managed to exclude themselves out of the European Parliament, loosing all their seats. The only one who kept the head out of the water succeeded in simulating unity. So-called alternative-organizations that are real politician-organizations has been trapped in their own politician-game.

Less funny, the Front National (National Front, extreme-right-party) is still roaming, 6% score, even if the government applies their fear-and-repression-program. But good news, the NFP (New Fascist Party, ex-Parti Anti-Sioniste) has been rejected by the people who vote.

This strange team, coming from the dark sides – fascists, nationalists, religious-extremists – didn't manage to mobilize. Which doesn't unfortunately mean that they won't exist anymore. The NFP has the ambition to build a strong national-socialist party with the support of the ghetto youth. Soral, their intellectual leader told recently: "Only nationalism has the fundamentals to incarnate a real economic and social alternative. (...) I think that if Marx was alive today, he would vote for extreme-right-wing." If they didn't get a good score, Jokeadit!!! is happy to give them the neo-fascist and antisemitism cup. We'll especially remember how they physically attacked left-wing activists during this campaign.

Let's finally evoke our own victory. The indifference and contempt victory. The No-Voice of those who didn't give a shit about the electoral marketing. 60% of non-voters face an isolated political-class which really doesn't seem to really care about Europe. When they do, it's for big business or organizing anti-migrants-programs. 60% today, the world tomorrow ! Waiting for this party-day, we would like to congratulate the only list who drove an european program, gathering different tendencies, lead by an ex-red-revolutionary (Dany Cohn-Bendit), an activist-judge (Eva Joly) and a peasant trade-unionist (José Bové). Without illusion, we officially ask them to fuck off all kind of fascists who have a seat in the European Parliament. To end, all our respect goes to Pirate-Euro-Deputy Christian Engström from the Sweden Piratpartiet, that militates for a "free Internet in a free society". Download & Boarding !

"MY DEAR STUDENTS, CHARGE FIRST !"

2009. A university-teacher-researcher's movement against the government projects started in January. It's new, never been seen, almost historical. Our special-reporter in the french-universities delivers us his feelings.

The teacher-researchers mobilised against an executive order (EO) of the LRU law (Liberties and Responsibilities of Universities) which will introduce the rivalry within their profession, an evaluation of their research and a competition for publication. This is the logic of the LRU, against which the students already actively mobilised in 2007/2008. But without the teachers that time. Even though they were warned that they will be touched by LRU project, they didn't budge. They didn't do anything for the students on strike and they didn't reject the police's interventions on campus against those students either.

This year, through the EO of reforming the status of the teacher-researcher, their corporation is being attacked. Sarkozy spits on their profession, accusing them of not working enough. What revolting horror ! Who dares to attack my ivory tower ? To me, my students ! Gather around my flag and charge these shameless ! But within the faculties, the battling students this year didn't accept being ruled by those who know only from afar the reality of the social movements, who adopt anti-democratic attitudes during the general-assemblies, who don't accept critics, who do not want to question the social relationship of domination/submission/authority in general and within the universities in particular.

This is all very sad, the reader thinks. Don't be depressed ! One part of the teachers realised that their flock of students weren't one, and that everyone should learn from the others. After a heavy a-scientific effort, some even realised that 1+1=3. The students, they realised they'll have only what they'll take, that they shouldn't expect too much from their teachers: "The university we desire isn't the one we have."

The thermostat says it in numerous faculties: the fight must go on. Today, tomorrow, in the new year, next year, later. Allied, linked, rallied, connected and disconnected, everybody, we can go beyond everything.

INTERNET ACTOR UNDERGO!

GRADUATE RIPOSTE IN THE MINISTER FACE

The French government has definitely difficulties criminalizing illegal downloading. After the big fiasco at the National Assembly because of the absence of the representatives of the majority, after being reformed by the European Parliament (amendment 138), the law finds itself being censored by the Constitutional Council. The government still doesn't let go and the real die-hards confirm that this law will pass. Proof of this stupid determination is the fact that the police detained 10 users of the snowtiger.net site last june. This downloading platform was the biggest tracker in France. The police informed that they will also detain the donors and VIP members of this site. Christian Engström, our Swedish camarad of the Piratpartiet, please defend us !!

When will their be a French Pirate Party ?
